DETAILED ACTION

In view of the appeal brief filed on August 7, 2008, PROSECUTION IS HEREBY REOPENED. New grounds of rejection are set forth below.

To avoid abandonment of the application, appellant must exercise one of the following two options:

(1) file a reply under 37 CFR 1.111 (if this Office action is non-final) or a reply under 37 CFR 1.113 (if this Office action is final); or,

(2) initiate a new appeal by filing a notice of appeal under 37 CFR 41.31 followed by an appeal brief under 37 CFR 41.37. The previously paid notice of appeal fee and appeal brief fee can be applied to the new appeal. If, however, the appeal fees set forth in 37 CFR 41.20 have been increased since they were previously paid, then appellant must pay the difference between the increased fees and the amount previously paid.

A Supervisory Patent Examiner (SPE) has approved of reopening prosecution by signing below:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yaksh et al. U.S. Patent No. 5,180,716 A. and Heywood et al. (U) and in further view of Drug Facts and Comparisons (V).

Yaksh et al. teach that spinal (intrathecal/epidural) administration of centrally acting agents, such as antineoplastics and analgesics is shown to have considerable therapeutic efficacy for treatment of pain, spasticity, central nervous system tumors and infections (column 1, lines 18-25) and teach that methotrexate is one of these centrally acting agents that is by intrathecal infusion (column 8, lines 33-39 and column 8, line 66 to column 9, line 8). Yaksh et al. does not teach treatment of radiculopathy, however Heywood et al. that rheumatoid arthritis causes cervical spine instability and is a causative factor in symptoms of radiculopathy (see abstract). Drug Facts and Comparisons teach administration of methotrexate for rheumatoid arthritis by ameliorating symptoms of inflammation (pain, swelling, stiffness) (page 1243).

It would have been made obvious to one of ordinary skill in art at the time it was made to employ methotrexate administered intrathecally for treatment of lower back pain with radiculopathy motivated by the teaching of Yaksh et al., who teaches the efficacy of methotrexate administered intrathecally and the teaching of the Heywood et al. that Rheumatoid arthritis causes cervical spine instability and is a causative factor in symptoms of radiculopathy (see abstract) combined with the teachings of Drug Facts and Comparisons that methotrexate is routinely employed for treatment of rheumatoid arthritis by ameliorating symptoms of inflammation.

Thus the claims fail to patentably distinguish over the state of the art as represented by the cited references.

Accordingly, for the above reasons, the claims are deemed properly rejected and none are allowed.
